WIRELESS CONCERT AT SEA.

CONTINUOUS COMMUNICATION WITH LAND.

NEWSPAPERS PUBLISHED ON BOARD.

LONDON, July 22.
Interesting experiments with wireless telephony are proceeding in connection with the voyage of the "Victorian" conveying the delegates to the Empire Press Conference to Canada. Continuous telephonic communication was established between the "Victorian" and the wireless station at Chelmsford. A wireless concert was given from Chelmsford in the first class lounge of the vessel when 600 miles westward. The "Victorian" also provided morning and evening editions of a newspaper for the first time in the history of ocean travel. It is expected that the "Victorian" which left Liverpool on the night of July 20 will be in telephonic communication with St. Johns to-night.

The German rigid airship L64 which was handed over under the Peace Treaty has arrived in England. It is slightly larger than the R34. It is 642 feet long and has an endurance of 4,000 miles at a cruising speed of 45 miles an hour.

RUSSIA AND POLAND.

GERMANY TO REMAIN STRICTLY NEUTRAL.

BERLIN, July 22.

Herr Simons, speaking to the foreign affairs committee in the Reichstag, declared that Germany would not consent without protest to any proposal for the Entente to despatch assistance to Poland through Germany. Any Russian or Polish troops violating the German frontier would be disarmed.

LINCOLN, Nebraska, July 22.

The Prohibitionist National Convention passed resolution almost unanimously tendering Mr. Bryan the Prohibitionist Party's nomination for the presidency. Mr. Bryan, however, has already announced that he will not accept.

SINN FEIN RECORD.

£2,000,000 DAMAGE IN IRELAND.

NO NEWS OF CAPTURED GENERAL.

LONDON, July 22.

In the House of Commons at question time, Sir Hamar Greenwood stated that it was estimated that £2,000,000 worth of property had been destroyed by the Sinn Fein in Ireland in 1919 and 1920, including over £1,000,000 in Munster.

All possible steps were being taken to ascertain the whereabouts of General Lucas but up to the present no news had been received.

RUMELTA RELIEVED.

SERIOUS ANXIETY NOW REMOVED.

LONDON, July 22.

In the House of Commons Mr. Winston Churchill announced that the relief column reached Rumelta on the afternoon of July 20. Serious anxiety with regard to the garrison was thus relieved. The column, composed of an infantry brigade with artillery, advanced at dawn on July 18 and reached on the morning of July 19 a spot four miles north-west of Rumelta where 2,000 of the enemy holding three lines of entrenchments, using bombs and machine guns, offered strong opposition. After severe and prolonged fighting our attack was successful. The enemy counter attacked after dark but was beaten off. The enemy was effectively bombed and machine-gunned, and suffered heavy casualties. They retired at night time. The column continued the advance on the morning of July 20 and reached Rumelta with little further resistance. Parties of the enemy retiring hastily were machine-gunned from the air.

DISTRAUGHT IRELAND.

"STEADILY DESCENDING INTO ABYSS OF ANARCHY."

RECRIMINATIONS IN COMMONS.

LONDON, July 22.

The situation in Ireland was discussed in the House of Commons. On the question of the Secretary's salary, Mr. T. P. O'Connor said that Ireland was steadily descending into the abyss of anarchy and chaos. Nobody had done more to create an extremist party than Sir Edward Carson. He suggested that it was the Ulster movement that swayed the vacillating German mind in favour of war.

Sir Edward Carson retorted that he believed this to be an unmitigated lie. He proceeded to defend Ulster's determination to resist being ground down under the heels of murderous assassins. He declared that the British Government had been entirely beaten in three quarters of Ireland. He demanded vigorous measures against the treasonable institutions which Sinn Fein was establishing.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, replying, said that 57 arrests had been made in Belfast. More would be necessary.

SYRIAN APPEAL.

LONDON, July 21st.
The Times' Cairo correspondent states that the Syrian Government is appealing to the League of Nations regarding France's action in occupying points on the Syrian railway.

RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA.

A serious situation has arisen between the Allies and Soviet Russia respecting Poland. The next few days are pregnant with issues of peace and war. The Government have adopted the view that the Soviet reply means the acceptance of an armistice. They are now taking steps to test this view directly, without delay. If the Soviet try to defeat Poland, before granting an armistice, the whole edifice of better relations between Europe and Russia, which Great Britain has been attempting to build up, will collapse.

The Soviet reply offers Poland a better eastern frontier than the Treaty of Versailles. The Bolshevik trade delegates in London have founded a Russian Trade Delegation Bank of which they are the directors. M. Krasin will, probably, be appointed as manager. It is reported that £2,000,000 in Russian gold is coming to Great Britain.

RUSSIAN GOLD FOR UNITED STATES.

WASHINGTON, July 21st.
The State Department will shortly announce the removal of restrictions on the importation of Russian pounds, involving the importation of Russian gold into the United States.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

HOBART, July 21st.
The Prince of Wales's reception in Tasmania was the climax of the Australian tour. It was a continuous triumph. There was unbounded enthusiasm shown at all functions which His Royal Highness attended.

The Shamrock won to-day.
SANDY HOOK, July 20th.
The Shamrock won the second Cup race, beating the Resolute by only a few seconds, after deducting 7 min. 1 sec. as time allowance in favour of the latter.
SANDY HOOK, July 21st.
The Shamrock finished 18 sec. ahead of the Resolute, but lost on the time allowance. The next race is on Friday.
LONDON, July 21st.
The Resolute won the third race.

BARONET AS CURATE.

ADVENTURES IN MANY LANDS.

Having been ordained at Chelmsford a short while ago, Sir Genille Caver-Brown-Cave preached his first sermon as a clergyman of the Church of England one Sunday evening in June at St. Andrew's, Walthamstow, to which church he has been appointed.

Sir Genille is the twelfth baronet of a line which goes back to 1641. He has preached in the United States, where he was for a time a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, and at Gosport and elsewhere while a private in the Royal Garrison Artillery.

His life has been one of travel and adventure, and he has hunted big game in many countries. He served with the Boxer Expedition, and with the United States army in the Spanish-American War.

Six years ago (writes a Daily Chronicle correspondent) I hunted Sir Genille up in a little "one-horse" village called Cecil, Pennsylvania, where he was working for a few shillings a week on a cranberry farm, reserving Saturday to himself for divinity study, in preparation for ordination and Sundays for voluntary preaching.

At that time his baronetcy had lapsed so far as his parishioners knew, and letters bearing the title led to inquiries by the postman for "anyone of the name of Bail."

ANCIENT EGYPT.

TIMES AND GEMS.

(By W. M. Flinders Petrie.)

Egypt means very different interests to different people. The rich tourist at Shepheard's, the cotton-speculator, the official who is helping to run the country, the colonial trooper who miscalculates the natives "black fellows," and the student of history who sees the longest vision of human changes—each has his world which has nothing to do with the other's.
During the war, our energies were drawn away to the preservation of civilization, and the students of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt were on active service. We were able, however, to re-assemble last winter, and it was hard to believe all that had passed, as we looked out of our huts at Lahun once more, over the same unchanged country as in the spring of 1914.

Why should eight people all live in mud huts in the midst of a sandy desert? As Epictetus says, the cattle in a market think the people foolish who trouble about many things, when only food and drink is wanted. So those who only think we want our living and amusements will wonder that we should live in a desert. That is, however, the way to a much wider sense of life than we shall ever find in cinemas or garden-parties. Work in the desert opens out the long prospect of eight civilizations, and what man could do in each period; how he lived, and how his abilities succeeded or failed; how no two centuries were alike, every generation improving or falling short. To follow this is the work of the archaeologist, as the changes of the body are the study of the physician, or the changes in the land around us the study of the geologist.

ROYAL SARCOPHAGUS.
We seek to look back and see what sort of man lived 5,000 years ago.
Deep down in rock chambers stand
these large sarcophagi of red granite, of a king, Senusert II, and two of his family. These great masses of many tons' weight are finely wrought in appearance, and when we come to test their accuracy we find that the general error is only a hundred and fiftieth of an inch from a straight line (about a third of the thickness of a postcard). The cutting was done without any machinery, simply by hand-work, and eye-testing. The training and watchfulness which was needed, the ideal of accuracy and the striving for it in a work which would never be seen again
after it was finished, give us a view of the intentions and powers quite on a par with those of our engineering age. Nor is this only a matter of a purely mechanical mind. When we come to test a long pattern of panelling on the side of a sarcophagus, we find that the spacing widens out to the two ends, in order to counteract the shortening effect of the end stoppage. The principle of architectural irregularities to give an aesthetic effect of equality was already understood.

Another striking object is a great alabaster vase, with an inscription stating that every kind of food and drink and implement can be obtained from it, one formula insuring the whole of the magic.

A GOLDEN SCEPTER.
In purely decorative work, these men also excelled. Their jewellery, such as we found in 1914, is of the best, and this year, we have a golden serpent from the royal crown, inlaid with coloured stones. Execution such as this shows the highest skill in metal work, and incredible delicacy in the cutting and inlay of minute stones; modern jewellers will not attempt to copy it. Human faculty was the same then as now;

we find the same ideals in work, the same—if not greater—skill, to carry it out. Yet all this could fade away in two or three centuries. Such is man.

We may go back 2,000 years more,
at the same place, and find what was as much before all this as Caesar was before us. Then a new world was growing out of a great invasion of a conquering people in the land, founders of the dynastic civilization; all the old customs were being shifted, much tighter organization was being enforced, writing was growing in use, everything was being registered by officials and no doubt the older people disliked it, as much as the Saxon hated the Norman census of Domesday. This new system changed even the old burial customs. For ages the plain open grave had been used by the pre-writing people. Now it was being divided into chambers for the offerings to the dead. Next, a recess was made, and developed into a chamber for the body. After that, it was a waste of labour to make a squared pit for entrance, as the slope of staircase was easier. Then a slab of stone was placed over the door, or slid down in grooves, to block the entrance. Lastly, all these devices disappeared, and a deep square pit was made, with a small chamber at the bottom.

RELIEF IN A FUTURE LIFE.
This history of changes came to view in the excavations of Lahun this year. The light railway there ran past the foot of a hill, where none of this was suspected; but in a few weeks the past mangers could look down into the excavation from the line. From the great attention paid to the graves in this age, it is clear that there was a strong belief in a future life; indeed, from the beginning of the prehistoric civilization, there was a definite ritual for the placing of the offerings in certain positions round the body.

Besides the fine bowls of alabaster, and other stones in the graves of the First Dynasty, a small conical vase was found in the form of a lotus with petals of alabaster and slate. The newcomers, who brought in fuller civilization, depended on brain rather than stature. In their first capital—of which the British School cleared the cemetery seven years ago—the fresh people were about five inches shorter than the older race; a similar difference is found now in the cemetery of Lahun.

THE AGE OF THE CAVE MEN.
The same district also takes us back much farther, to the beginning of the age of cave men, the Mou-sterian period. A patch of ground 200 or 300 ft. across, just above the Nile inundation, was strewn with worked flints, all of the same style, like the European forms of that age. The way in which these lay about on the surface shows that, since then, the Nile has not been making deposits above that level;
that is to say, the slight fluctuations of level in the latest glacial periods
all took place within the 40 or 50 ft.
of deposit which the Nile has laid down. We already knew that the next period, the Amarnaian, was free of inundation in Upper Egypt now the Mousterian proves to be in the same case.

Many matters of lesser importance came to light; the brick archways of 3,000 B.C. and the sloping foot to a wall to prevent rain soaking into the mud-brick foundation; also a burial of five bodies in one coffin;
an elderly woman and infant, a young man, and two girls, with a pretty wooden casket with sliding lids.
Foundation deposits were found with bull's heads, one of which was perfect, with the hair upon it. Sets of model tools were placed in the early dynastic graves. A great tomb and tomb-chapel had been cut to pieces for stone, but enough remained to show that it was of the chief architect who built Lahun pyramid, and whose flight of brick steps leading up to the work was found in the midst of the chip heaps. All these matters serve to fill up the detail of the picture of what man was, how he thought, and how he lived, in the successive civilizations, each of which ran its course and gave way to another by those inexorable changes to which every civilization—even our own—is subject.

in. In his position we would not be sad, but full of the joy of contemplating a fresh start, and of course, fresh habits.

Probably, if there be any sense in philosophy, the worst habit a man can have is the habit of living. He wouldn't go on doing it if it had not become a habit. This explains why druggies, bed-ridden and pain-racked people, all the hopeless ones, cling to life.

ADVERSARIA.

Idea are like breezes, and readers are like trees. The idea stirs the foliage a little, so that it sways, but when the breeze passes, the mass of the tree is as before. When we think of some of the ideas that have blown through this column, the idea of human equality before God, the idea of the Square Deal, the idea of acting humanly toward our fellow creatures, the idea of not fussing and fretting so much over things that do not matter, and when we contemplate the trees again, spreading their branches as if no breeze had ever been, we long for typhoon words, that would permanently twist and turn them. When we think of the failure of the one big lesson of the war, of passports and police registration and Prussianism, we curse our inkpot because it is not a barograph, and bewail our language that it is not squally and strong enough to break some of those branches; especially the smug contours of the numerous examples of toponym that grow here. In moods when we could eat elephants and pick our teeth with cathedral spires, we try to write typhoons and gales and cyclones and roaring winds. The trinit trees look up, nod gently, murmur "Breeze," and fall asleep again. Rrrrrrr!

Oscar Wilde achieved one good dedication poster. Once. He wrote: "To the British Public: These pearls. One of these days we must have a China Mail poster with just those two words on it. What? One of our recent posters provoked a telephone message. The voice said it was 'in bad taste.' Whereupon Adversaria, who concocted it, became hysterical, and said he had never been so happy since his friends the worms got his dearest enemy. He always gets that way when anyone talks of taste. Sensations of taste are subjective. The biliary products of jaundice feel any doctor give a bitter taste. A tongueless man has no taste.

This disposes of the French adage. Each one to his own taste. Ninety-nine per centum of the statements in the Bible are in very bad taste. The nastiest taste we know is the self-appointed arbiter of good taste. It is a reddish yellow, with black spots, and dank. Any essay on Good Taste that we ever write will be in the worst possible taste. Let us, therefore, avoid it. Don't mention it. Leave it in the bathroom.

John Kestrel, bless him, put us GOVERNMENT, all right yesterday about the Chinese government. It is a pleasant thing to be put right. We forget whether he said the Chinese government is at Peking or not, but we retain the impression that he was sure it isn't at Canton. He said something about a recognized government. Recognition does not make a government, and conversely, withholding of recognition does not unmake one. Witness the government of Russia, which is real enough, while all Europe refuses to recognize it, as if it were a society lady who had been found out and caused a scandal. We for our part do not believe there is a Chinese government. It is a Mrs. Arris. What is more, we do not see the necessity for one. The Chinese do not need a government. They are the world's best behaved anarchists. Leave them alone, and they mind their own business. Don't leave them alone, they still go on minding it. There is a Chinese government at Peking in the same sense that there is a British government in London. Neither governs. Both are collections of self-interested career makers, playing at governing, while the main body of the public muddles on as well as possible. Some people think the Macao people did wrong to shoot at and kill so many Chinese to oblige the Canton government. We cannot see that they were any worse than the Hongkong government, which banished a Hongkong citizen in order to please the Canton government. The British flag used to be the symbol of the shelter of political offenders. We British used to think that best. And now? Without barring our pen and boiling our ink, how are we to discuss the stinking fungi that seem to have overgrown our dearest principles?

Another mouth to feed, snarled Huck, when Marius, the Epicurean waddler in, Marius is another mongrel puppy, most unfashionably brisk, and not worth (so, say doggy men) the cost of his licence. But he has a sprightly spirit and a kind face, and shall stay. His parasites ought to provide Huck with congenial employment. The pomp with which Marius stalks and seizes a slipper, savagely shakes it, carries it away to worry it undisturbed, is a comedy more rare and fine than any ever seen on the stage of the Theatre Royal. It is so unself-conscious, whereas all Huck's demonstrations are the most blatant "showing off." Rousseau the kitten is the youngest of the lot, and "by long chalks" the most dignified. It is not quite fair to the cockroaches, which have hitherto had the floor largely to themselves, but they are intelligent creatures. Let them start a League of Nations. Besides, their aggressive treatment of any book left out cannot be defended. It is as bad as the Poles and the Bolsheviks.

Civilization, says a Bosh, writer in the London Mercury, is a compromise between expediency and the primitive instincts. Bosh! Civilization is a delusion of persons with primitive instincts dreaming of expediency. It is a dream that hasn't come true. Civilization is the voice of Jacob. "but the hands are the hands of Esau," which are hairy. The primitive instincts are candidates for election as representatives of the survival of the fittest.

5 p.m. Homing Diaries of an evening, for once. Call at Hongkong Hotel to return a book. Coming out of office, meet friend who is waiting for another friend. He says "Have one?" Don't want one, but want to talk with him about to-morrow's engagement. Two whisky-sodas. Boy keeps change, ten per cent. commission. Do hotel boys pool these funds? Point discussed. Another friend arrives. Three of the same. Soda not cold. Ice ordered. Talk of war experiences. Learn new things about human parasites, notably scabies. Interesting. Beards and razors. Beards allowed in trenches, but not in camp. Many Kitchener chaps, unused to shaving themselves, hurt faces cruelly. Necessary because of scabies. Why not shave heads also? Answer: Hair cut very short. No conclusion to this argument. Fourth friend arrives. Four w. & s. Beginning to feel exalted. Tendency to talk too much. Four more. Everybody talking, none really listening. Short stories. One new one—pity unsuitable for China Mail. Discussion of prevalence of spongers, men hanging round for free drinks.

One mentioned who orders most expensive drink when treated, and a lemonade when treating. Feel slightly uncomfortable, because my turn now, and wanted to do that. Already too much whisky. Room rather wobbly. Another round of w. and s. Change from ten dollar bill, $8.10. Give boy odd dime. Afterwards remember that four drinks should have been only $1.60. Didn't see check. Maskee. What about chow? Excellent idea. Perhaps that will have sobering effect. Go over to two other men to join chow party. Appetisers. That puts the tin hat on. Adjourn to steak and onions, refusing beer. Got some sense left. Then on to swimming fete. All the swimmers have four arms and four legs. Makes them look spidery. In the case of the ladies, nice looking spiders. Lose book. Probably fell in water. Lose tram. Home in ricksha, falling asleep on way.

THE DOCKYARD TRAGEDY.

AN AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT.

The untimely and tragic death of Warrant Officer Holmes, who was drowned in the Naval Camber early on Thursday morning, has occasioned considerable comment. The China Mail is now in a position to publish authentic details of the affair. According to this information Mr. Holmes entered the yard at about 12.15 a.m. on Thursday, and after bidding farewell to two friends with him, proceeded to walk down the yard. Shortly afterwards a report was made that a European, dressed in civilian clothes had fallen into the camber from the tug "St. Monace." Enquiries were at once made as to the Europeans on the tug, with the result that all were reported present. An Indian constable then said that the man had gone on board from the jetty and hailed some one in doing so he tripped or overbalanced and fell into the water. The description of the man corresponded with that of W. O. Holmes of the "Tamar" and from enquiries made on this vessel it was learned that he had not yet returned. Commander Kilgour was notified and a boat was sent to search the camber. This search was unsuccessful. Efforts made to find the unfortunate man from the "St. Monace," were also unavailing. A seaman, returning from duty on one of the submarines at about 12.15 heard a splash, but there were no cries.

Mr. Holmes was being invalided out of the service on account of his eyesight. He was employed on the "Titanic" for submarine duties and previous to that was on H.M.S. "Euryalus."

It was learned this morning that Warrant Officer Holmes's body had been recovered in the naval camber.

UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT TO EVADE PROVISIONS.

The owner, a wealthy merchant of a certain Chinese city, recently instructed the captain of a river steamer to give the mate twenty-four hours' notice in order that he might be replaced by a Portuguese, holding a Macao certificate.

The skipper, who was prepared to refuse to sail with the Portuguese, immediately went to the Guild, which in turn approached the Harbour Master, who replied that he could find no record of any correspondence between the government and the Macao port authorities during his predecessor's term of office.

"The Harbour Master, however, did not give the necessary permission for the ship. Consequently the British mate retained his position.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The C. P. O. S. Co.'s R.M.S. "Empress of Asia" is expected to arrive to-morrow (Sunday) at daylight.

At the Magistracy this morning before Mr. R. O. Hutchison, a Chinese youth was charged with unlawfully returning to the Colony after having been banished for a period of ten years. He admitted the offence and said that he had come back to look for his younger brother in order to take him back to the country. Replying to the Magistracy, the Police said that the defendant was banished this year on a "confidential warrant," the charges against him being that he was unemployed, had no fixed abode, and was a thief and a general bad character. Sentence of twelve months' hard labour was passed.

ANFU CLUB DENOUNCED.

CIVIL RULE MUST SUPPLANT MILITARY FORCE.

[China Mail Special.]
SHANGHAI, July 23.

VICTORIA RECREATION CLUB.

SUCCESSFUL SWIMMING FETE.

The stands erected round the swimming pool of the Victoria Recreation Club were packed with spectators last night, when the Club held its first night swimming fete of the season. All the events were well supported and were productive of some excellent swimming. The two lengths handicap was won by E. W. Raiton, a young swimmer with a considerable amount of speed. He won his heat comfortably, receiving four seconds from Jack, who made a valiant effort, but found the handicap too difficult to overcome. J. R. Johnstone also failed in his heat, the winner being D. Laing, to whom he conceded three seconds. Lyon, the back-marker in his heat, was the first to touch. Botelho was the other to qualify for the final. This proved an exciting event, Raiton and Botelho claiming the honours. The high diving was rather disappointing. Laing deserved the first place, although his first dive was not of prize winning standard. Raiton did well up to his third dive. The Services Team Race was a very exciting affair. There were no less than nine entries and the melee at the end of the bath can well be imagined. No 2 R. G. A. were first, securing a win over H.M.S. "Tamar" by a matter of two or three strokes. The races for ladies were also well supported. In the water polo match R. C. Witches (Blue) team easily prevailed over that of J. R. Johnstone (white). The white team exhibited a tendency to hang on the ball too long, often bringing disaster on themselves.

At the conclusion of the programme the prizes were presented by Mr. R. E. Bellios.

The results follow—

Two LENGTHS HANDICAP.—1, E. W. Raiton; 2, A. Botelho.

Two LENGTHS HANDICAP.—1, Miss Witches; 2, Miss Prickett.

Two LENGTHS HANDICAP, BOYS.—1, F. Sozana; 2, F. Pereira.

FOUR LENGTHS MIXED TEAM RACE.—1, Miss Ruby Young, D. Laing and R. W. Tatum; 2, Miss Wheeler, J. R. Johnstone and E. W. Raiton.

SERVICES TEAM RACE.—1, No. 2 R.G.A. (Gr. Watson, Br. Wood, Br. May, Gr. Horan, Gr. Knight, Mr. Morris); 2, H.M.S. "Tamar" (Mr. Morris, S. B. S. Hayward, W. Stone, E. Cole, S. Sutherland, L. Handford).

Two LENGTHS HANDICAP, LADIES.—1, Miss D. Windbank; 2, Miss R. Young.

HIGH DIVE.—1, D. Laing; 2, G. C. Jorje.

WATER POLO.—Witches' team beat Johnstone's team.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

[CONDUCTED BY "PETER PAN."]

My dear Children,

This week I have written a story for you about two dogs called Snip and Snoop. I shall not tell you about them every week but just every now and then so if you want to hear more of their adventures you must look out for the weeks when they come along.

I expect most of you are fond of riddles and I am putting one in our corner each week with the answer as well because it is horrid having to wait a whole week for the answer, I know.

Your loving
PETER PAN.

There was a chow dog of Hongkong whose tail was remarkably strong. The tram he could pull. Up the Peak, when quite full. What a wonderful dog of Hongkong! How many hairs are there in a cat's tail? No, they are all on it.

SNIP AND SNOOP.

There was once upon a time a little girl called Mary. She lived in the country just outside a big town and near to the sea.

One day Mary had a birthday and when she came down to breakfast she found lots of parcels on her plate and on her chair there was a large basket tied up with string. There was something wriggling about inside it and making a noise like "Wool wool!" You can imagine how excited Mary was and she cut the string and opened the basket as quickly as ever she could.

And what do you think jumped out? Two fluffy little puppies as round and as soft as balls of wool and one was as white as snow and the other one was as black as ink.

They both had labels tied round their necks on which was written "Please take great care of us Mary. We are very little and very nice."

"Yes, I should think you are nice," you dear things," said Mary. "You are too lovely for words. I must run and thank Mother and Daddy for you."

She went upstairs with a puppy under each arm (her Mother and Daddy were both late for breakfast that morning) and she gave them each a big kiss and told them how pleased she was and because she could not think of any better names just that minute and wanted to call the dogs something she christened them Snip and Snoop.

"And now Mary," said her mother, "you had better give them a saucer of milk and when you have had your breakfast you can take them for a walk."

So Mary fetched a saucer from the pantry and filled it with milk and Snip and Snoop drank it up in a great hurry and split some of it on the carpet.

"To-morrow dears," Mary said, "you shall have a newspaper on the floor and you shall each have your own saucer of milk and you must learn to eat and drink tidily."

Snip and Snoop both said "Wool wool!" and quite understood what Mary meant. In fact they were extraordinary dogs, as you shall hear later, and there was not much that they did not understand.

Then Mary opened her parcels and had breakfast while Snip and Snoop had a game of "If I bite your tail you may bite mine too, only not too hard, and then we'll roll over together in a ball" and afterwards they went for a walk and had the happiest day possible.

HOW GROWN-UPS LIVE.

My mother says it's very wise for boys at early hours to rise. She says in bed till nearly ten and hasn't had her breakfast then.

My mother says it's very nice to eat a pudding made of rice. I have it every other day. While mother eats a light soufflé.

My mother says I go to school to learn to be a man and rule. And yet she stays at home and plays. I do think folks have funny ways.

Just wait till I've grown up a man, I'll do the littlest I can, I'll have my breakfast just at ten and then go back to bed again.

I'll never go for walks at all. I'll play indoors with a new ball. A spot of milk-I'll never taste. But live on cake and almond paste.

I'll think of heaps of things to do. Of games to play both old and new, just wait till I grow up a man, I'll do the littlest I can.

CAN YOU AFFORD THE RISK?

WHERE you ever seized with a severe attack of cramp colic or diarrhoea without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house? Don't take such risks. A dose or two will cure you before a doctor could possibly be called, and it never fails even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by all Chemists and Druggists.

POLICE PROPERTY PAWNED.

CHINESE OLDER CHARGED.

GUILTY KNOWLEDGE DENIED.

Before Mr. N. L. Smith at the Magistracy yesterday afternoon, the hearing was concluded of the case in which the Chinese accountant of the Yuen On Pawning Shop, of No. 26 Wellington Street, was charged with having unlawfully and in contravention of the provisions of his licence, received police uniforms in pawn.

Acting Detective Sub-Inspector C. McNab Wilson, prosecuted. The defendant was represented by Mr. M. H. Turner.

The Police master tailor recognised the tunics and some material produced, as Government property. He said that while the similar stuff was procurable in Hongkong, it was very rare. Other branches of the Government service wore the same stuff, but the style of the tunics was not the same. The cut of the tunics produced was essentially Police.

The Magistrate: Do not bank watchmen wear that style of tunic? Yes, but they are made of different material and have no belt loops. In reply to Inspector Wilson, the witness said that another proof that the tunics produced were police tunics was the fact that they had shoulder straps. No other branch of the Government service wore shoulder straps. The sleeve pattern was also exclusively Police.

The Magistrate remarked that he had seen many people wearing coats of that or similar material and of an identical cut. Surely, the witness could not say that all those tunics were Police tunics?

The witness replied that he recognised his own cut in the tunics produced. As he made tunics of that pattern for the Police only, the tunics must be Police property. Besides, said the witness, he had lost a quantity of material and two unfinished tunics sometime ago.

The Magistrate: But those tunics look to be complete.

The witness: No, the button holes have not been cut in yet.

Replying to Mr. Turner, the witness said that any man in the street would know that the tunics were police tunics.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

Addressing the Magistrate, Mr. Turner said that he was not disputing the fact that the tunics and material were Police property. He was prepared to admit that if necessary, what he did dispute was guilty knowledge on the part of his client. He submitted that both the material and pattern were by no means explosive.

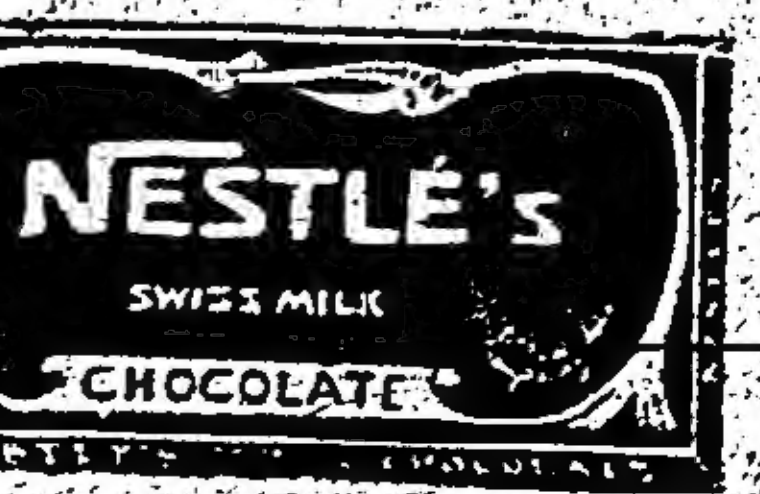

The master tailor had himself admitted that although very rare, the stuff was obtainable in small quantities in shops in Hongkong. What remained to be argued therefore, was the question of pattern. If his Worship was prepared to believe the master tailor that the tunics were recognisable by any man in the street as police tunics, then he (Counsel) would argue against it. But if his Worship thought that there was a doubt, then he would save the time of the Court by dismissing the defendant.

The Magistrate said he had a doubt that the tunics were recognisable all over the Colony as police tunics. Under the circumstances the defendant might have been ignorant of the fact that they were Police property when he received them in pawn. The prosecution had failed to prove guilty knowledge, and therefore, he must dismiss the defendant. Defendant was cautioned, however, to be more careful in future.

BURGLAR KILLED.

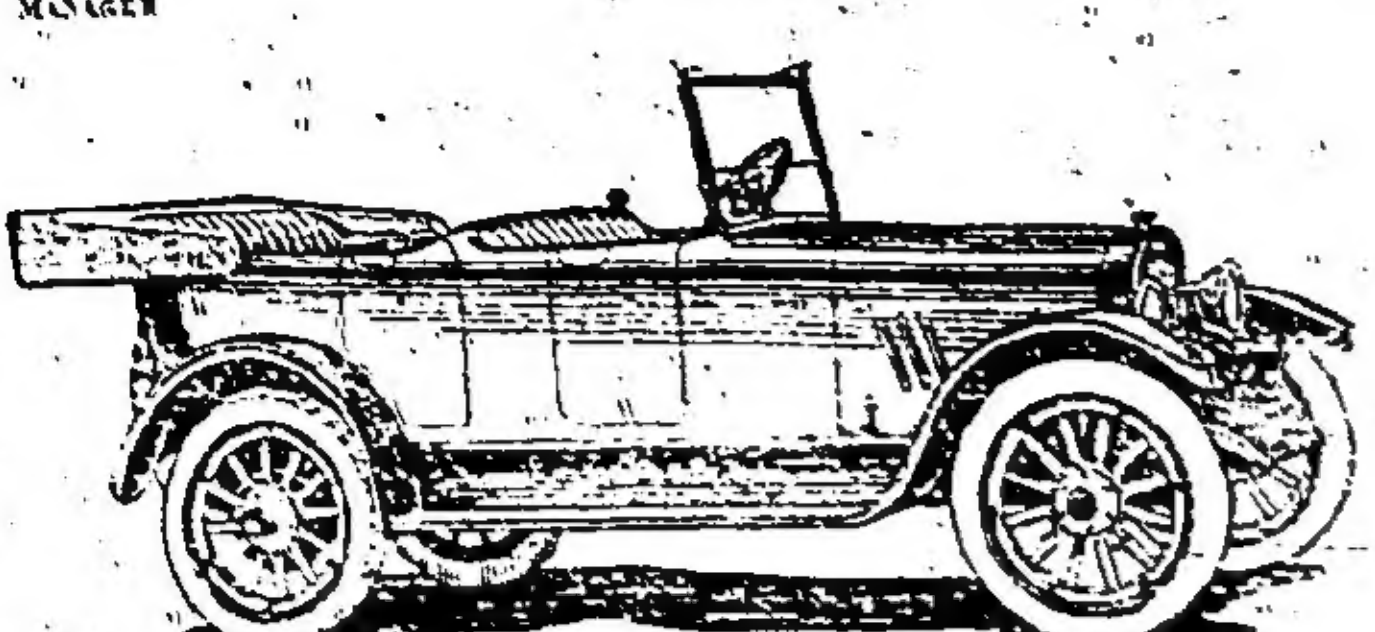

CHASSED, FALLS 30 FEET.

Climbing up a drain pipe at the back of the house on Thursday night, a burglar gained the second floor of No. 7, Queen's Road Central through the kitchen window. Groping his way noiselessly past the prostrate forms of a couple of sleeping servants, he drew back the bolt of the kitchen door, and gained the interior of the house. One of the inmates, however, happened to be still awake, and seizing the intruder, called out "thief." The man struggled violently and managed to break away. He made a dash for the verandah followed by the excited inmates. Vaulting over the verandah rail, he landed on a narrow ledge from which a drain pipe led to the road below. He was about to slide down this when he lost his grip of the verandah ledge and fell thirty feet to the gutter below, smashing his skull and breaking a leg. He died before the ambulance arrived.

MORE CHILD HAWKERS.

ORPHAN GOES TO JAIL.

Before Mr. R. O. Hutchison at the Magistracy this morning Sergeant McKelvie charged a 13-year old Chinese boy with selling olives in Wanchai without a licence.

The defendant pleaded guilty and said that as both his father and mother were dead he had to shift for himself. He was able to raise a loan of 10 cents as capital, but did not know where to get the $2 for a licence. If he did not hawk he would have no money to buy food.

The Magistrate told the defendant that he must not on any account hawk without a licence. If he had no money to get one, he had better find some other work to do. A fine of $2 or three days' hard labour was passed.

The lad of course did not have the money and is doing the three days.

Another youth was charged with selling olives in Chater Road and causing an obstruction on the footpath. The defendant plunged into a long story of how his heartless mother had turned him and his small brother out of the house when the interpreter interrupted with: "That's enough, we don't want to hear your life history. You are charged with selling olives in Chater Road, are you guilty or not?"

The defendant denied that he sold any olives in Chater Road. He said that he was passing through the road on his way to the market when he was stopped by his friend.

Sergeant McKelvie said that the defendant told his story to Mr. Smith sometime ago and was given a licence out of the poor box on condition that he hawked only in Wanchai. He ignored that order and persisted in playing in Chater Road. The defendant had been seen there often but always managed to escape the Police by dodging round pillars. The Sergeant said that he would not have challenged the defendant yesterday had he not noticed his licence and recognised it as a Wanchai licence.

The Magistrate imposed a fine of $2 or three days.

Two other youths were charged with selling vegetables in the vicinity of the Central Market. Both said that they were standing by watching other boys sell. When the police came up, the boys ran away and they were arrested. They were also fined $2 each.

A 12-year old boy was next charged with selling vegetables without a licence. He frankly admitted the offence.

Replying to the Magistrate, he said that a man named Ah Chieu sent him out to hawk.

Sergeant McKelvie said that the defendant was only yesterday convicted for a similar offence and given six strokes.

The Magistrate: It does not seem to have had any effect on him!

The Sergeant said that if the Magistrate did not mind, he would like a remand until Monday. In the meantime he would see that the defendant was properly fed and try and find something about him. The defendant had told so many different stories that he could not say which was true.

The Magistrate granted the application.

A Chinese woman who at one time lived with a well-to-do Chinese at No. 42 Bonham Road, was this morning charged before Mr. R. O. Hutchison with the theft of a quantity of clothing, jewellery and money to the value $1,880, the property of the Chinese mentioned. Mr. Leo Longinotto, who appeared for the defence, applied for a week's remand. It was granted.

The Chinese newspapers made a special feature yesterday of a report that a Yaumati Detective named Ngok (Sub Inspector Ogg of the Yaumati Police Station?) had his automatic pistol loaded with seven rounds of ammunition removed from his quarters yesterday. The revolver is numbered, and had a special mark on it. The Inspector's quarters are within a stone's throw of the Station. No official confirmation of the rumour could be obtained.

AMONG THE ROYAL DEAD.

HISTORY SLEEPING ENTOMBED AT WINDSOR.

The Rev. Jocelyn Perkins writes in the Daily Express:

It is announced that King Edward's body is shortly to be removed from beneath the choir of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and placed in the sumptuous tomb which has been prepared for it in the Albert Memorial Chapel away to the east end.

How the thought takes my mind back to a day many years ago when I stood on the organ screen of St. George's side by side with one of the Windsor dignitaries! What a blazing day it was—one of those heavy June afternoons when there was not a breath to stir the air.

A strain of mingled joy and thanksgiving was welling forth from the organ. The white-robed choir entered and the voice of the priest was heard beginning to chant Evensong. Some one touched my companion on the arm.

He turned to me, and I followed.

Where was I? In a dream? I stood in a low-voiced chamber imperfectly lighted by a couple of oil lamps. As my eyes gradually became accustomed to the gloom I realised that I was in the presence of the departed of bygone generations.

"This," said our companion, "is the coffin of William IV. Here is that of George IV., and there at the extreme east end lies the body of poor old King George III. It is a very rare thing, indeed, that the royal vault is ever opened save for some great funeral, but I thought you would like to hear how wonderfully beautiful the music sounds down here."

Then hard on the verses there burst forth the psalm supported by a wonderful rolling accompaniment from the organ, and chanted with the purity and beauty of tone in which the Windsor choir always excels.

It was an occasion to which only the pen of a Macaulay or a De Quincey could possibly do justice. How the marvellous music surged along on its way as the thoughts rose up in one's mind of George III., the founder and constructor of this royal vault, who had loved Windsor with all his heart and soul, and who had dragged out the last ten years of his dim old age in a couple of rooms in the castle of which he was the proud possessor. There, too, lay the Prince Regent, "the first gentleman in Europe," who by his vices and follies had nearly brought the English monarchy down to the dust. There, too, most pathetic of all, was the coffin of his daughter, the much-loved Princess Charlotte, with her tiny baby beside her.

At last the time came for us to retrace our steps, and we passed out into the upper world once more and out into the brilliant June sunshine feeling that we were different from what we had been an hour previously. Life and death—how strangely and wonderfully are they intermingled! What a strange collection of hopes and disappointments, of joys and sorrows, lie hidden in the royal vault, which during the last ten years has been enriched so greatly by the presence of Edward the Peacemaker.

Does not, after all, the greatness of England consist in the unbroken continuity of her life, in her power of adaptation to the changed circumstances of the times, which has scarcely ever failed to be exemplified in the life and work of those who sit on her throne?

£5,000 FOR RUBBER IDEAS.

In order to encourage new uses for rubber, the Rubber Growers' Association is offering £5,000 in handsome prizes for suggestions for extending these uses. These suggestions must be practicable and likely to increase the demand for the raw material, and all who have any ideas on the subject will find it worth their while to think over the prize scheme.

BLAZON TYPE NOT NECESSARY.

CHAMBERLAIN'S Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy needs no glaring head line to attract the public eye. The simple statement that all chemists sell it is sufficient as every family knows its value. It has been used for forty years and is just what its name implies. For sale by all Chemists and Storekeepers.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

IMPORTS—PRICES CURRENT.

Cotton piece goods and fancy cotton goods.—The market is unchanged. A few sales of Fancy Goods have transpired, but the general opinion is that sales will not be normal much before October. This, however, is dependent almost entirely on exchange. The recent reports from America indicate that the new Cotton Crop will be poor, in which case Manchester prices will not decline, but will, in all probability rise again to abnormal heights. Makers to-day are offering low grade printing cloths at 10% below top rates, but makers of better cloths remain firm.

Cotton Yarn.—Further substantial advances have been witnessed, especially in the higher counts, but the volume of business has been curtailed by the rapid advances in values.

Quotations are—

Arrivals 7,500 bales. Sales 4,000 bales. Shipments nil.

Unsold Stock 5,000 bales. Bargains 18,000 bales.

Woolens.—Still no business has been transacted and quotations are nominally unchanged as follows: Indian descriptions $37.41 and Chinese descriptions $41.47 per picul.

CORONET THEATRE.

"THE RIGHT TO LIVE"

A 1920 picture that will not be shown in London until October next is the exceptional attraction current at the Coronet Theatre.

"The Right To Live" in which Dolores Casinelli, the "Cameo Girl" of filmdom, takes the leading role, was produced by a famous director, Capellani, whose Italian characteristics combined with the thoroughness of American production methods, give a picture of unusual perfection.

The plot of "The Right To Live," as portrayed by the beautiful Dolores is both powerful and moving, and to be appreciated must be seen in all its dramatic force and intensity. It would not be fair to the picture to attempt a description within the limited confines of a newspaper notice. The picture is advertised as not for children.

CHINA AND THE AUSTRIAN LLOYD.

FRESH DEVELOPMENT.

BRITISH PRIVY COUNCIL RECOGNISES ITS ITALIAN NATIONALITY.

SHIPS SEIZED BY CHINA.

A Shanghai Reuter message dated July 16 says that an important development is reported in connection with the final attribution of the former Austrian Lloyd vessels, a matter in which China is especially interested.

The East Eastern representative of the Lloyd Trieste Company has communicated the following to Reuter:

"The General Manager of the Lloyd Trieste Company at Trieste reports that the British Government has recognised the Italian nationality of the Lloyd Trieste Company and has confirmed the decisions of the Prize Courts at Alexandria and Aden which in August 1914 ordered the detention but the return on the conclusion of peace of the Austrian Lloyd steamers 'Korber' and 'Franz Ferdinand' respectively. These vessels will accordingly be restored to the Lloyd Trieste Company in due course."

The Austrian Lloyd fleet at the conclusion of the armistice was divisible into three categories: (1) vessels still operated by Austria (2) vessels in the hands of the Allies and (3) vessels under construction. Of these to-day (1) are being operated by the Lloyd Trieste Company on behalf of the Italian Government, pending Italy's ratification of the Treaty of St. Germain, whereafter they will sail under the Italian flag. (2) were registered and launched and are being sailed under the Italian flag. As regards (3) the British Government's decision is the first step on the part of any of the Allies towards restoring the ex-Austrian Lloyd steamers held by them to the present Italian company.

China seized three Austrian Lloyd vessels in August 1917, namely the Bohemia ("Hwah Ping"), Silesia ("Hwah Yih") and China ("Hwah Yeh"). The argument advanced, inter alia, on the Chinese side that China could not be expected to return these ships to Italy, while Great Britain still retained those which she (Great Britain) had confiscated, would appear to be invalidated by the British Government's decision reported above.

"MUTT AND JEFF."

COPYRIGHT ACTION IN ENGLAND.

In the Chancery Division of the High Court of England, before Mr. Justice Sargent, on June 2, an action (which was set down as a short cause on a motion for judgment) was brought by Mr. Harry Conway Fisher, an American cartoonist, commonly known as "Bud" Fisher, against Sir Alfred Butt, and Messrs. Oscar Barrett, Leon Pollock, and Larry Ceballos, for an injunction to restrain them from infringing the plaintiff's copyright, by the exhibition in a dramatic form, or by way of theatrical reproduction, of any scene or character representing or colourably imitating the figures, drawings or characters known as "Mutt and Jeff" in cartoons, of which the plaintiff was the author.

Sir Alfred Butt is the managing director of the Empire Theatre, Leicester-square, and Mr. Oscar Barrett is manager of the same theatre, and they were so described in the programmes. The plaintiff complained of a performance last December and January, at the Empire Theatre, known as "The Red Mill," which was produced by the defendants Pollock and Ceballos.

Mr. J. F. Carr, for the plaintiff, said that the defendants Pollock and Ceballos, who had given an undertaking when an interlocutory injunction had been moved for in February last, had not put in any defence.

Mr. Gilbert Bevis, for Sir Alfred Butt and Mr. Oscar Barrett, said that the defence put in by them was a denial that the performance was produced under their control or direction, or even that the actors representing "Mutt and Jeff" had appeared with their knowledge, but the learned counsel said that his clients were willing to submit to an injunction without costs or damages.

Mr. Justice Sargent granted an injunction against the defendants Pollock and Ceballos, and against them ordered an inquiry as to damages, the costs of which were reserved.

His Lordship also ordered these two defendants to pay the plaintiff's costs of the action. By consent an injunction was granted against Sir Alfred Butt and Mr. Oscar Barrett, but without damages or costs.

DON'T NEGLECT YOUR FAMILY.

WHEN you fail to provide your family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy at this season of the year, you are neglecting them, as bowel complaint is sure to be prevalent, and it is too dangerous a malady to be trifled with. This is especially true if there are children in the family. A dose or two of this remedy will place the trouble within control and perhaps save a life or at least a doctor's bill. For sale by all Chemists and Storekeepers.

MUSICAL SURPRISE.

A man who took his wife and three children for a walk in the Bois de Vincennes, near Paris, noticed a cafe, says the Continental Daily Mail, outside which was the following notice: "Reopening under new management; all sorts of surprise packets." On the way back the family stopped at this cafe and had five glasses of beer. The waiter persuaded them to wait until the band began to play, and each absorbed another glass of beer. Directly the band struck up the waiter presented his bill, 18s. To the family head's protests, he replied by pointing to a notice which stated the price of a glass of beer to be 1s. without and 1s. 9d. with music. The bill was paid, but a complaint was laid with the police.

A "SLUMP" IN ALLIGATORS.

Old travellers told wonderful tales of the multitude of alligators on the Mississippi mudbanks. Now a telegram from New Orleans says that the raw material of fashionable suitcases and dressing-bags may disappear unless a close season for the reptile is imposed. Existence becomes precarious for any wild creature whose destruction yields a profit to man. The furred animals of the Arctic are hunted remorselessly. Even the British mole may need protection. Before the war a moleskin fetched not more than a penny. Last winter the price touched two shillings, and gamekeepers trebled their wages by their traps.
